

Illustration

Design

Video

3D*

*Certain background resources may need proper accreditation

Small Basement Camera Shop Circa 1937

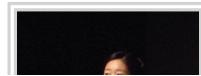

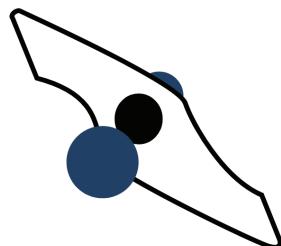

A recreation of an antique photo booth (camera) found in an antique store. A set like one you might find for a play or movie was constructed meticulously to get every detail as close to the original as possible in every respect. The biggest deviation from the original is that Rodney Graham himself replaces the photo's subject.

These comments are on the nature of photography, using modern equipment and color capability to recreate a photo or movie was predating those things, a photo which nonetheless comments on those things, a photo which

...which nonetheless comments on those things, predating those things, a photo which

An Acted Singer in a World of Acted Fame

[Birth of a Star was made in 1995, but the story of a computer generated pop star personality tells a story that feels like a prediction of certain aspects of pop culture now. I imagine an actor playing the part of pop star at the whims of a computer, told by a machine the words to sing and say according to what is most profitable. And I relate that to algorithm driven media on the internet, from click-harvesting news sites to shock-value YouTubers to social media influencers selling 'the good life'.]

Home Comic Cast Author Archive

Latest Comic

Comic 12

Welcome To Cave Tale!

Cave Tale is... Well, it's a fan comic for a video game called Cave Story. I made the little bit back in middle school, and it was hosted on a website called SnackJeeves.

Home

Web Design*

*Certain images may need proper accreditation or replacement